

Historical Chronology Of Grove City, Pennsylvania

c. 1758

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cunningham and Mr. and Mrs. James Glenn from Antrim County, Ireland, emigrated to the United States; the Cunninghams and the Glens established their homes in Shaver Township, Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania. The Cunninghams had two children a son, Valenitne and a daughter, Polly. The Glens also had a son, Robert, and a daughter, Margaret. Valentine and Robert served in the Infantry during the Revolutionary War, and after the war they returned to Huntingdon County, PA., where they married one another's sister.

1795

Free parcels of land in Mercer County and elsewhere were offered to white settlers by government officials in Harrisburg, PA. As a result of this historic offer, two villages on Wolf Creek were founded simultaneously-Pine Grove and Slabtown approximately one mile north which formed the nucleus of Grove City, Pennsylvania.

1796

The first permanent settlers in the Grove City region were Samuel Waldron and his family, originally from New Jersey, and Thomas McCoy from Harpers' Ferry, West Virginia. Mr. McCoy had six sons – John, Joseph, James, Thomas, Hugh and William. The McCoy family settled in the area known today as McCoytown, PA.

1798

Valentine Cunningham and Robert Glenn of Huntingdon County, Pennsylvania are presumed to have conducted a reconnaissance party to this area during which time they chose the site known today as Cunningham Park, Grove City, for their permanent settlement. The village they founded was called Pine Grove, a name suggested by Margaret Cunningham.

Valentine Cunningham received an original land grant of 400 acres.

A gristmill was built by Cunningham and Robert Glenn along the western bank of Wolf Creek.

The Cunninghams built their log cabin home downstream on the eastern bank of Wolf Creek, not far from a village of friendly Indians.

Approximately a mile north in Wolf Creek, another gristmill was built, possibly by Robert Glenn or James Graham. This village was named Slabtown because of the large slabs of slate which were stored on the side of the mill until they were needed to cover the holes in the roads nearby.

1799

February 19, Mr. and Mrs. Valentine Cunningham and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Glenn signed an Agreement to share equally any profits realized from the gristmill in Pine Grove.
